

Summary

Some results and discussion are presented on the use of insecticides, cultural practices, resistant plants, and biological control in the integrated management of cercopidae (Deois incompleta, Zulia entreriana, D. schach, D. flavopicta, and Aeneolamia selecta) in Brachiaria pastures. Based on these experiences, several proposals are made for the management of this pest.